“The challenge is to set up systems that allow students to follow their interests. People tend to dichotomize approaches in education: The teacher is either telling students what to do, or standing back and letting them figure it out. I think that’s a false choice:

The issue is not structure versus no structure, but rather creating a different structure.”

How might I?
How have I?
How is it going?
How will I?
How might that shape things?
